The Enscape Blog: Contributor Guidelines

Our mission is to publish high-quality informative, educational and inspiring content to architectural, engineering and construction professionals via the Enscape blog.

If you're thinking about submitting a post that talks about your Enscape story; provides actionable tips or talks about a certain industry trend or news item, please take a moment to review our contributor guidelines.

Content

- Posts submitted to Enscape must be your own, original work, and must not have appeared on another website. Once the post has been live on the Enscape blog for a minimum of 7 days, you may republish it on your own website (or LinkedIn) should you wish. However, please mention that the post originally appeared on the Enscape Blog and link to the post.
- The Enscape blogging team reserves the right to edit a guest post where necessary. However, we will always share our suggested edits, giving you the chance to review them before a post is published. We will not publish a post unless you are happy!
- When quoting others, please ensure to cite your source.
- Enscape reserves the right to remove a post without notifying the author and to use call-to-actions within posts, such as asking readers to subscribe to a newsletter, download an eBook, take out a trial etc.
- Once a blog post is live, Enscape has the right to promote that post via email, social media and any other outlet that is appropriate (let's get people reading your article!).

Image and Videos

- Please include your rendered images and short videos where possible to showcase your great work. As a guest writer, you must be the copyright holder of any images or videos used, unless they are under a creative commons license. You must also have the appropriate permissions to use any images relating to your work, and grant Enscape the rights to publish these materials on the Enscape Blog and promote them via email, social media and any other outlet as appropriate.

Author Bio

- Please provide a short bio with one link to your website and preferred social media channel. Please also include a headshot photo.

  By submitting a post to Enscape, you agree that you have read and understood the above guidelines and agree to be bound by them.
